CINCINNATI—DEC. 6.

Flour is in good demand, at $7.75 from the Wagons; and $8 from the Stores, which prices are fully realized.

Pork at present fluctuates a good deal—sales were yesterday freely made at $5.12 to $5.14 net. We conversed a good deal in the course of the day with many of the principal merchants and our impression is that it will settle down to from $5 to $6; there is at present no scarcity in the market.

THE BANK OF CAMDEN, S. C.

CAMDEN, Dec. 13, 1836.

THE Board of Directors have ordered the payment of the 4th installment on the Capital stock of this Bank, on Tuesday the 17th day of January next. Public notice is hereby given, that the same, being ten dollars on each share, will be received, on or before the 17th day of January 1837, in Charleston, by the Planters & Merchants Bank; in Columbia, by the Commercial Bank; in Cheraw, by the Merchants Bank of Cheraw; and in Camden at the Bank of Camden; who alone will issue receipts. Stockholders desiring receipts must therefore make their payments in Camden.

Dec. 20, 1836. W. J. GRANT, Cashier. 6-5t

COMMISSION &amp; FORWARDING BUSINESS.

THE undersigned, thankful for past favors, will still continue the above business. His Ware House is ample and safe, and he will give the strictest personal attention to all business entrusted to him. But finding from experience his past charges too low, he will, after the first of January next, charge twenty-five per cent. on all monies laid out.

Cheraw, Dec. 20, 1836. FELIX LONG. 6-4t

N. B. He will give punctual attention to all Bank business entrusted to him. His charges will be, One Dollar for each note discounted or renewed, or for bank notes, or for buying and remitting bank checks. Letters in relation to this business must be post paid.

$30 REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber, on the 17th inst., a Negro man by the name of JESSE, about thirty years of age, rather slim built, well made, very black complexion, small keen eyes, small neat feet, thin lips, has a scar, I believe, on his face above one of his eyes, and the mark of an Issue behind his neck. He carried with him several suits of cloths, a blue broad coat, several round jackets, pantaloons, &c., a Hat and Cap. He is about five feet seven inches in height, very plausible, and has rather a sly, down look; he has several scars on his head occasioned by fighting, and I think, has lost one tooth. The above reward of thirty dollars will be paid by delivering him to me at Cheraw, S. Carolina, or lodging him in any jail so that I can get him, with all reasonable expenses.

Cheraw, S. C., Dec. 19, 1836. JOHN TAYLOR.

The Wilmington Advertiser and Fayetteville Observer, will copy the above four times, and forward their accounts to this office for collection.

MERCHANTS BANK OF S. CAROLINA.

At a meeting of the Stockholders of this Institution convened this day, in pursuance of a public notice, to determine upon the proposition of the Directors to increase the capital stock of said Bank.

It was unanimously resolved—

1. That one hundred thousand dollars be paid into this Bank by the Stockholders thereof in proportion to the amount of stock they respectively hold, to constitute an increase of the capital stock of this Bank, the same being one-third part of their present stock; and that the present capital paid in being $300,000, the increase is one third part thereof.
2. That the above $100,000 be paid on Monday the 9th day of January next, either at the banking house in Cheraw or at the Bank of Charleston in that city.
3. That no transfer of stock be made from Thursday 29th inst. until after the 9th of January proximo.
4. That the Board of Directors do apportion the odd shares by lot.

Copied from the minutes of the proceedings of the Stockholders.

PROSPECTUS OF THE SOUTHERN REVIEW.

TO be published at Washington, quarterly, in an 8vo. No. of 275 to 300 pages; price 5 dollars per annum, payable in advance. The place is chosen, not only for its facilities of information, literary and political, but as that at which the Southern States can be united upon the undertaking, with the greatest ease and with the completest exemption from all State or Party jealousies.

Of the matter, three-fourths (say 225 pp.) shall consist of regular Reviews; making about 9 of 25 pp. each. These must, as to literary works at least, return, as a general rule, somewhat towards that older method, now almost forgotten, and give a regular analysis of the book reviewed, if it be of any merit. In Politics and upon Occasional Topics, there may be a greater liberty of deviating into mere dissertation.

In this portion of the Review, there will be given, in each No., a paper historical of the Politics and general events of the day; to serve as a Historical Register. Its execution will always be committed to the strongest hands only; and its purpose, to give a unity and consistency to the Public Doctrines of the Review, such as can scarcely be so well effected in any other manner.

Occasional Retrospective Reviews will also be embodied in this part of the plan, with a view of favouring, in a certain degree, the more curious studies; or to revive the knowledge of important books, forgotten in the confusion of modern learning.

Writers will be led, of regular purpose, to give their papers, wherever the subject will permit, the form of a Series; in order not only that they may thus afford a complete body of information, but serve, also, to re-print apart, for popular circulation; a method that will much augment both the reputation and usefulness of the Review.

A body of Miscellaneous (say some 50 pp.) will form the subordinate and more amusing part of the Journal. Its contents will, for the most part, consist of short Literary Notices, Biographical Articles; a critical list of New Publications, foreign and domestic, and general Literary Intelligence.

In Communications, the compressed mode of writing will be every where required. Papers, in which the words do not bear a just proportion to the information conveyed or the effect intended, will be either rejected, without scruple, or abridged, without mercy.

To warrant this exactness, the usual rate of compensation to writers will be advanced to 23 dollars per printed page; a price that will offer fair remuneration to the talents and labor which we wish to secure.

Of this revival of a Review of the South, the purpose is to give once more to our region, (now eminently needing it) an Interpreter and a Defender; the common Representative of our Institutions, and of the Mind itself among us.—Such, in that great Congress of Opinion, where the fates of civilized nations are now so largely settled, we do not possess, and we have already suffered much for it. It is time to make ourselves understood and respected there. The Journal which shall do this, must combine the general strength of all who, throughout the South, love the country, and are capable of doing it with intelligence. It must, then, be, not the champion of the propagandist of local opinions, but the friend of all that pursue the public good—into the vulgar methods of Politics, debased by Partisan rancour, or corrupted by the popular passion of the hour, it must not fall. From it the pride of the Nullifier must receive no diminution, the fidelity of the Unionist no reproach.—It must be no vantage-ground to either party; nor serve but as an equal field, where they will only contend which shall most advance the cause of the South, and of that older doctrine of Jeffersonian State Rights, avowed by both parties alike, and now the only hope of rallying and of rescuing the country.

To vindicate, then, our peculiar Institutions; to repel with argument, lest presently we be forced to repel with arms, all external interference with our domestic condition; against the wild rule of mere Chance and Corruption, to uphold a Republican and Federalist, distinguished from a Democratic and Consolidating administration, the National affairs;—where Reform of the Central Government—where Reform in our States—where Reform in our local systems—where Reform in our public policy—where Reform in our State, capable, through itself, to confer upon us the blessings of well-ordered Liberty, expected in vain from the Federal Power: from the delusions of Party Politics abroad, to call home the attention of our people to those arts, by which the wise and the brave have often raised petty States into noble and prosperous Commonwealths; to attack men, if possible, to their birth-place, and convert them, from wandering and selfish adventurers, into citizens, the lovers of civilization; to re-animate public spirit, and give it purpose, as well as energy; to hold, over Parties and Politicians, the tribunal of a Public Opinion far different from that idle and corrupt one, of which the Newspaper Press is the voice; for these purposes, to diffuse through the land sound and well considered public doctrines, with Knowledge and Taste, their natural allies—such will be the general aim of that literary league, among the best talents of the country, which has been set on foot, in the present undertaking.

Of its critical purposes, it is not necessary to speak so minutely. In general, it will, of course, strive to guide the popular eye towards the best sources, in Knowledge, and the truest models in Elegant Letters. Its judgments will, however, found themselves upon its temporary renown or its birth being on this or the other side of the Atlantic. Towards the few good writers that want of cultivation has yet permitted us to have, in America, it will know how to be respectful.—But in Literature, as lately in Trade, we shall insist that no man's bad commodity be forced upon us, under patriotic pretences. Upon all that school of writers, whose works, for want of every other merit, attempt to make themselves out, out of the very fact that they are not English, an unsparring war will be waged; nor less upon that other great division of the invading army of Dulness—the endless compilers of bad and illiterate School-books—a sort that drive out every thing humane amongst us, by poisoning its very fountains, where they pass. Over these and whatever else of pernicious the Northern Press pours out upon us, a strict supervision must, for every safety, be maintained.

Upon the Literature of mere Amusement—Novels, Verses, the Travels of the ignorant and impertinent people, or the like: upon Anniversary Oration, Inaugural Discourses, and those volumes of Indignation which pass for Public Speeches; and of all illustrious and heroic persons in general, that are still alive; upon Charity or Missionary or Temperance or Anti-masonic Sermons or Reports; and upon all Awful Disclosures whatever, the current criticism of the Review must proceed by notices, justly proportioned to the brevity of existence enjoyed by this literary grass, which flourishes greenly in the morning, and is cut down and flung away before the night. Life is too short, Art too long, Cotton in store. Persons living in the country and towns adjacent by giving a description of their property, can have it insured against loss or damage by fire.
